California, enriched in history and heritage, blessed by a benevolent Nature in the wealth of her resources, and mindful of the prominence her citizens have consistently brought her through enterprise, is proud to be the FIRST state in the nation in population, agriculture, aerospace development, military industry, education, recreation and in other fields of human endeavor.

In this year of the 110th annual State Fair and Exposition, Californians will number nearly 18 million, all keenly aware of the greatness the state has been fortunate to claim and hopeful of the added greatness that lies in store in the future.

One of the showcases for the past, present and future of these Californians is their State Fair and Exposition which by tradition offers attractions and programs of interest to every segment of the public and which focuses attention on the state's accomplishments and achievements in every field of human effort.

The 110th California State Fair and Exposition, beginning on August 28th and lasting through September 9th has everything to uphold the historic traditions and, therefore, is of paramount interest to all citizens and visitors in the state. Of special interest and specific significance is "California First" Jay on September 9, Admission Day, when representatives of the state's leading industries will be honored in ceremonies to which national visitors are invited, including first the Honorable President of the United States, and the Honorable Governors of the other 49 existing states.

Now, therefore, I, Glenn M. Anderson, Lieutenant Governor of California, do hereby proclaim September 9th as a special day in California to be recognized this year on Admission Day additionally as "California First Day", and I do hereby urge everyone to attend the State Fair and Exposition and familiarize themselves with the state's wealth and resources exhibited and displayed.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 16th day of August, A.D., nineteen hundred and sixty-three.

Glenn M. Anderson
Acting Governor of California

James W. Gardner
Secretary of State
