P R O C L A M A T I O N

Californians are a tree-loving people, proud of their giant redwoods and fine mountain forests. On the bare hills and in the vast sunny valleys, every tree planted is precious and highly prized.

For the most part our citizens are well aware of the importance of conservation programs, the need to preserve and expand our wooded areas, and the beauty of tree-lined streets and shaded areas in residential developments. Tree planting continues throughout the year.

Since 1947, under a requesting resolution of the State Legislature, Arbor Day has been proclaimed annually on March 7, as a fitting memorial to the great naturalist, Luther Burbank.

Therefore, as Governor of California, I, Edmund G. Brown, do hereby proclaim March 7, 1960, as ARBOR DAY in this State. I urge the day be observed by appropriate, planned planting of trees and shrubbery.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set
my hand and caused
the Great Seal of the State of California to be affixed this 25th day
of February, A.D., One Thousand Nine Hundred and Sixty.
