Founded as an independent county in 1893, Kings County boasted an estimated population of 152,940 in 2019. Once the site of one of the largest fresh water lakes in the American West, Lake Tulare, this county also boasts the second oldest adobe in the San Joaquin Valley, El Adobe de Los Robles, a large oilfield, Mussel Slough, the site of a famous confrontation between local landowners and the railroad, as well as several historic stage route stops. If you are looking for exciting local history resources in the California History Section's rich collections, then check out what we have for this county.
